Villanova Wins NCAA Title

Tuesday, April 2, 1985

In one of the most stunning upsets in the history of the NCAA tournament, the Villanova Wildcats won their first national basketball championship last night with a 66-64 victory over defending champion Georgetown in Lexington, Ky.

The Wildcats (25-10), who started the tournament as the eighth-seeded team in the NCAA Southeast Regional, upset the No. 1-ranked Hoyas (35-3) with a shooting performance that was nothing short of phenomenal.

Excitement for 'Nova fans just about too much to bear

It was simple hard work that made it work.

Villanova found proper attitude to approach game

A stunning championship run that burst from out of nowhere.
Imagine, if you will... law student Rodney S. on a late afternoon in May.

Out at the bar...

JEEZ! THAT BARTENDER LOOKS LIKE... NAH! IT CAN'T BE... JUST THE SAME... I'M GONNA GET OUT OF HERE...

I'M GONNA VISIT MY MOM AND DAD... MAYBE I CAN REGAIN SOME OF MY SANITY THERE...

I'M GONNA NUTS! EVERYBODY LOOKS LIKE HIM!!

...this gas'll make your car run like a cow trying to shave, sir...

...but the gas station attendant gave Rodney the same eerie feeling...

...but the parents that greeted him were not of this dimension...

HELLO SON, LAST HOUR... IF I WAS YOUR MOTHER, I'D GIVE YOU A HUNDRED!

RODDY HAD ENTERED A DIMENSION WITHOUT TIME... A DIMENSION WITHOUT SPACE... A DIMENSION WITHOUT DICTION... HE HAD ENTERED...

...Another crack about GUMBY and I'll take away your LEGO set, Don...

Well, I really, er, um, don't have an attendance problem, Dean - all six students show up for my Con.Law class...

I wish some students would be absent more...

Absenteeism in a word? THORNTON!

Dick, is Joe still staring at me?

I maintain classroom attendance the old-fashioned way... FEAR.
