Arguments For Legal Writing Postponed Until Third Year, When Students Have More Experience.

By Dean Jewish

In a surprise announcement, the legal writing program has decided to suspend oral arguments until the third year of law school. "We feel it's in the best interests of the students," said Professor Durako in a press release. Professor Stanchi added that "Students shouldn't waste the best years of their lives worrying about arguing a fictitious issue. So we foisted it off on the third years, to gain experience in classes and the Reimel writing program has decided to suspend oral arguments until the third year of law school.

"Great Kwee" Entertains Faculty

By Jack Meloff

Minutes after Louisville's upset of the Villanova Wildcats, Kittles, a senior, did what everyone knew he would do. Leave school. As shocking as the Wildcats' early exit, was Kittles' decision to pass up the NBA, and instead study for those dreadful LSAT's that we all had to take. Yes, you heard it here. He is applying to Villanova Law School.

The admissions office has already reacted favorably to Kittles' announcement, saying he is a shoo-in, and citing good grades, and likelihood, Villanova Law will accept the talented forward. When asked why he did not want to enter the draft, and earn millions of dollars, he mentioned that his parents would be very proud if he got another degree. He also replied that Basketball just is not the same anymore. Besides, we all know how the millions he could earn in the NBA could just as easily be earned at a large law firm, assuming he does make law review, and graduates in the top 10 of his class.

Kittles has already enrolled in an LSAT review course, and has written up a personal statement, and rumor has it that he wrote about the very difficult decision he had to make between the noble profession that is law, and a very lucrative NBA career. He has also started looking for housing off-campus since Villanova Law does not provide housing for their students. He is deciding between Sugartown Mews in Devon, and Radnor House, which is closer to the school. Even though he will probably miss the admissions deadline, since he has not taken the LSAT's yet, the admissions office is willing to accommodate the man who brought back life to Villanova's basketball program, and almost made us think that 1985 was not just a fluke.

Kerry Kittles, Villanova Basketball Star, has announced his intention to attend Villanova Law School in the fall.

"Great Kwee" Entertains Faculty

James J. Bullock

The faculty and staff received a treat recently, as the Great Kwee, Master of Hypnosis, entertained at the recent faculty meeting. The Great Kwee was evidently a big hit, as the faculty voted to pay three times his requested fee for the entertainment he provided. "It's really too much," said the Great Kwee, smiling broadly. "It's honor enough to perform at such a school where the teachers think only of the best interests of the students."

 Tootsie Roll call. (Three licks.)

 Jon Spot stole all the money

 Checks for used books are available in the cafeteria. Slavics for used books are available in the SBA office

 Villanova basketball tickets are not available to anyone without "connections".

 Banister’s Ball Report. We will have the Banister’s Ball at the Academy of Natural Sciences. There will be loads of food at the Banister’s Ball! Open bar and grille. Date is April 11, 11:34 - 12:00. Tickets are now on sale in the cafeteria - Perkins loans will be available. SBA will be organizing busing and hotel discounts. Due to the fact we can’t stand students, we will get 25 rooms knocked off (Vinnie the Squid will be performing the “hits.”) Note that these rooms will not all be on the same floor. You pays your money and you takes your chances. More information might be available later. We’re looking for someone to put up “really cheezy” decorations. (Note- See if Vinnie can take out this Kwee character too.)

 Will be selling Banister Ball tickets forever and ever and ever and ever and ever

 Rush Limbaugh speaker series. Topic: “What would happen if the law school closed tomorrow.” Voted on professors to ask to speak. Can’t stand any of them, ordered Pizza instead. Got pepperoni on one, mushrooms on the other. Was a little greasy. Need to find a date to have this event.

 100 Days Party!!!!

 Checks for used books are available in the cafeteria. Slavics for used books are available in the SBA office

IL’s will be making rude noise in first year classes. We WILL sell tickets at the door and collect doors at the ticket. Good luck trying to get IN the door with all the confusion. There will also be coat check moose in the coatroom. Each person will get a numberless coat chip. Anyone who winds up walking our with the same coat they wore in should praise God.

BUY YOUR TICKETS NOW BEFORE WE SLAUGHTER YOUR CATTLE!!!!

MOCKET EDITORIAL
by Rich McGuire

To the Villanova Law Community,

Have you ever noticed that, in my editorials, I never really say anything? Oh sure, I prattle on about something or other, but I never seem to sound like I’m saying anything of substance. Go ahead, grab your past issues and check. I’ll wait. See? Nothing there. Just fluff.

Certainly, some may see an almost Seinfeld-like quality in the complete lack of efficacy of my editorials, and applaud my genius. Others, expecting their journalists to tackle the hard issues, scoff at my lack of professionalism. Some may believe that, because of this, this is the last thing I do, and I’m so damn tired, I don’t have anything to say. But does anyone really know why they’re all fluff? I’ll tell you why.

Because, really, I’m a candy-ass wimp who’s afraid to piss anyone off. Yeah, it’s true. I’m a coward. Did you see how I gave in to Holli so easy on the basketball thing? That’s because I thought she was going to beat me up. I was scared. No controversy in the paper? It all adds up now, doesn’t it? So please be sensitive to me when you rag on the Moocket.

So now, now I’m done what I have to say, and have to figure out some way to fill the rest off this stupid gray box. Ho hum. Maybe I’ll switch to "How does this font look? Maybe some random symbols."

Random Nonsense, by Star Ledger.

- Who burped into that lake during property (section A)? B. 1.
- And what about that section B'er that fell asleep in class after she had an afternoon beer?
- Or how about that guy that is ALWAYS late for Crim in sec. A? What a beautiful day in the neighborhood MR. 7.
- Name all the future lawyers with tattoos. I know two so far, D. and S. the men, the men.
- Who farted during class (section A)? Yeeceeechoh
- Some dude in section A is running a big time pool for NCAA's isn't that illegal?
- Isn't it fun to knock over those mikes in room 29 or room 30?
- Nick-names are already starting to stick.
- Someone is singing bad soda jingles in section B. And she’s packing Pez, from what I hear.

By Imo Schmuck.

- Spring Elections will be held for the Student Bar Association. All interested candidates should apply, and candidates not winning in the election will be turned in, this is the last thing I do, and I know why they’re all fluff.

Weally Wacky Web Sites!

by Bill Gates, Computer and Technology Editor

Recently I was surfing the WWW when I came across what is perhaps the best site so far:
http://www.doctordeath.com/gohaul/murderer/weirdo

Now this may look like your typical old web site, but it’s much more. There’s step by step how-to instructions (including a few photographs), online help (if you really can’t figure out how-to), and some nice links to other web sites (like the suicide prevention web page).

Now most web pages have counters on them that simply add the number of visitors and display that number, but for some reason this web page’s counter is very low (I guess they don’t have many repeat visitors).

Other interesting sites that I have come across include:

www.menendez.com/how-to/parents and www-jello/nailed/wrestling

While I’m sure there are many other web sites out there that are just as interesting, enjoy these few.

This may very well be the last time I ever write for the Moocket, so good luck to the class of 1996!!!!!!

LETS SET THE RECORD STRAIGHT:
AND THE TAPE, CD, AND EIGHT TRACK AS WELL.

More than twenty-five years ago, I founded Ball-Bri Bar Review upon two core principles: first, that law students are a stupid, cowardly lot who were scared stiff of the bar exam, and second, they would pay any amount of money to improve their infinitesimal chances of passing. Everyone here has lived up to those principles under penalty of of being eaten alive by my Rotweiler, Morty.

Unfortunately, Pest Bar Review has not.

Pest has slandered Ball-Bri, pasting up posters claiming to reveal so called “facts” about our involvement with Chernobyl, Ruby Ridge, Whitewater, New Kids on the Block, Tailgate, the assassination of JFK, the theory of evolution, Vanilla Ice, Cop Rock, inflation, Cool World, Ishtar, the Crucifixion of Christ, and new, brighter, Lucky Charms.

I assure that most of that is pure shit. In over twenty-five years as President of Ball-Bri, I’ve never even eaten Lucky Charms. Let me separate the fact from fiction.

FICTION: Pest has taken all our best lecturers.
FACT: Well, Ok, they did, but they were all pedophiles and had B.O. Good Riddance!

FICTION: All our Management left.
FACT: NO ONE has made it over “the wall” since I bought Morty.

So you see, Pest is trying to snow you. They ain’t hip, they ain’t cool, they don’t know what the hell they’re doing. You go Pest, your doomed to eternally ask if anyone wants fries with that.

Ball-Bri. Cause you don’t have the (well, you know,) to take the bar on your own.

Sincerely,

Dick Conniver
President and CEO.

Melita's Quarintina Presents: The "Bar Exam" Quiz

Well, everyone, welcome to latest Villanova Law Mocket Quiz! This month, we've succeeded in finding a new sponsor for the quiz! As the headline indicates, Melita's Quarintina has agreed to sponsor this monstrosity. Therefore the winner of this quiz will receive as his/her/their prize absolutely nothing! Yes, lovely Melita's Quarintina, oozing with, well, ooze. Please patronize them, so we can keep having a really cool prize.

ON TO THE QUIZ!

This time, as you may have guessed, the topic of our quiz is the Bar. Below you will find a complex fact pattern. Read it carefully. Make sure you have read the fact pattern 70 or 80 times before you dare to even look at the questions. After the fact pattern, there will be a series of questions relating to the fact pattern. Answer these questions to the best of your ability. We will be publicly ridiculing incorrect answers. Assume any facts you feel are relevant. Don't submit your answers, they're all wrong anyway.

THE BAR QUIZ:

You are a busdriver in Springfield, and driving your route when a lady with a big handbag gets on the bus. She pays her fare and sits down next to a suspicious-looking man about 6'5" in height, and weighing approximately 300 pounds. He is big. Even though he is big, they do not touch, but she does feel a pain. As you continue on your route you notice a car then turns away. At about the same time, you notice it is snowing, lightly. You continue on your route and it stops suddenly. You do too. The driver seems to be looking at a woman appearing to gain speed behind you. The woman is big. Even though he is big, they do not touch, but she does feel a pain. You notice his jacket has an obscene word printed on it. You and Otto run out, before you take a step someone touches you offensively on the bum. He tries to run away from you, and you move closer to him, then push him out the 4th floor window. As he falls, screaming, he passes the second floor window and is shot in the head. As he lands, he is immediately trampled by the hordes fleeing the building.

As you collect yourself on the sidewalk, someone shouts, "Murderer!" while pointing at you. You become emotionally distraught, you flee. You do not stop running until you realize you are about 1/2 miles away from the Brooklyn Bridge. Suddenly, Otto stops you, preventing you from going any further. Try as you might, Otto won't let you pass.

The Questions:

1. What was the name of the bus driver?
2. Do you know anyone named Otto?
3. What is the name of the bridge immediately to the north of the Brooklyn Bridge?
4. How can you get to Manhattan from Brooklyn without using a bridge?
5. What year did the Dodgers leave Brooklyn?
6. If Professors Perritt and Schoenfeld were in Wrestlemania, who would win?
7. In what state is Springfield?
8. What did you have for lunch today?
9. Did it have bones?
10. What is your random examination number?
11. Shouldn't you be studying?
12. From what song comes the quotation, "fire, smoke she is a risin'?"
13. Did you read the fact pattern before answering the questions?
14. Really?
15. What did it say?
16. What word do you find most offensive?
17. Bored yet?
18. How much greater is 7/8th than 1/2th?
19. What part of the body is colloquially known as "the bum?"
20. How many people must be fleeing the building?
21. Assume the man you pushed out the window began his dissent at 0 m/s in the y direction. Assume the bullet has a mass of 1/8 kilogram, and hits the man at the exact midpoint of his fall with a force of 6 Newtons in the x direction. If a story is 11 feet, how long will the man take to plunge to his bloody demise. Don't use calculus in your computation.
22. Do you know calculus?
23. Would you introduce us?
24. If you dropped a bone on the floor, you'd pick it up, wouldn't you?
25. What do you plan to do with a Quickie Mart anyway?
26. Have you ever flown from anyone calling you names?
27. Where would you go to get your taillight fixed?
28. Haven't you had enough of snow already?
29. Did you ever find that contact lens you lost on the bus?
30. Will you go out with me?
31. What if I brought flowers?
32. It's my hair, isn't it?
33. What movie role would the suspicious-looking man be perfect in?
34. Fill in the Blank: "I am a ______ for wasting my time on this thing.""
