OPINION

PER CURIAM

Mario Llin Santana, a citizen of the Dominican Republic, became a lawful permanent resident of the United States in 1994. In 1997, he pled guilty to and was convicted of attempted criminal sale of a controlled substance in the third degree, in violation of New York Penal Law (“NYPL”) § 220.39. In 2010, Llin Santana returned from a trip to the Dominican Republic and was questioned by an immigration official. He admitted to his prior conviction, though he claimed that he only pled guilty because his attorney told him to. He was subsequently served with a Notice to Appear charging him as inadmissible under both 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(2)(A)(i)(II), as an alien who has been convicted of “a violation of . . . any law . . . of a State . . . relating to a controlled substance,” and § 1182(a)(2)(C), as an alien who the Attorney General knows or has reason to believe “has been an illicit trafficker in any controlled substance.” Those charges were sustained, and he was ordered removed.

Llin Santana’s appeal to the Board of Immigration Appeals (“BIA”) was dismissed on June 5, 2013, and he timely petitioned for review.¹ Because Llin Santana was found removable due to a conviction of a controlled substance offense, see 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(2)(A)(i)(II), we lack jurisdiction to review his final order of removal, 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(C), except to the extent that he raises constitutional claims or questions of law. 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(D). As a threshold matter, such claims must be colorable, i.e., non-frivolous. See Pareja v. Att’y Gen., 615 F.3d 180, 186 (3d Cir. 2010).

Llin Santana presently claims that the Government failed to demonstrate that his conviction constituted a felony punishable under the Controlled Substances Act (“CSA”). However, no such demonstration is required; any conviction for a crime involving a controlled substance is grounds for inadmissibility under § 1182(a)(2)(A)(i)(II). See Mizrahi v. Gonzales, 492 F.3d 156, 158–59 (2d Cir. 2007) (explaining that “the statutory language indicates Congress’s “intent to sweep broadly, applying to a violation of ‘any law or regulation,’ whether state, federal, or foreign, ‘relating to a controlled substance’”) (quoting § 1182(a)(2)(A)(i)(II)); see also Borrome v. Att’y Gen., 687 F.3d 150, 160 (3d Cir. 2012) (noting that the phrase “relating to” is to be read expansively). Moreover, Llin Santana does not challenge the BIA’s holding that all of the substances criminalized by NYPL § 220.39 are included in the CSA, and they are.² Thus, any conviction under NYPL § 220.39 constitutes a violation of a law “relating to a controlled substance” as defined by the CSA and justifies a finding of inadmissibility under § 1182(a)(2)(A)(i)(II) irrespective of whether the record identifies the substance involved. Cf. Rojas v. Att’y Gen., 728 F.3d 203, 204, 206 (3d Cir. 2013) (en banc) (holding that the Government was required to prove the identity of the controlled substance involved in a Pennsylvania offense where “Pennsylvania’s controlled substances schedules list drugs that are not in the federal schedules”). To the extent Llin Santana argues that the Government has not

² The CSA provides a list of “controlled substances” at 21 U.S.C. § 812, which is supplemented by 21 C.F.R. §§ 1308.11–.15. Borrome, 687 F.3d at 158. The Federal Analog Act further provides that the analog of any of the listed substances shall themselves be treated as a controlled substance under schedule I. 21 U.S.C. § 813. NYPL § 220.39 criminalizes the sale of numerous classes of drugs which are enumerated in NY Public Health Law § 3306. All of the substances that could be involved in a conviction under NYPL § 220.39 are either included in the CSA or are analogues of listed substances. Compare NYPL § 220.39 and NY Public Health Law § 3306 with 21 U.S.C. §§ 802(6); 812(c); 813.

The petition for review presents no colorable claims,³ and we will dismiss it for lack of jurisdiction. Pareja, 615 F.3d at 186.

³ Because Llin Santana is inarguably inadmissible under § 1182(a)(2)(A)(i)(II), any challenge to the BIA’s determination that he is inadmissible under § 1182(a)(2)(C) is frivolous. Llin Santana’s contention that he is actually innocent of the crime at issue and pled guilty only on the advice of counsel also is not colorable; a conviction remains a conviction for immigration purposes unless and until it is overturned, which Llin Santana does not allege has occurred here. See Paredes v. Att’y Gen., 528 F.3d 196, 198–99 (3d Cir. 2008). Accordingly, these claims are beyond our jurisdiction. 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(D); Pareja, 615 F.3d at 186.
